

Published based on Connecting To The Ancient Earth - World Heritage Sites InAfrica

Connecting To The Ancient Earth - World Heritage Sites InAfrica

Often when you think of international travel, its hard to know where to begin. There are so many interesting places in the world. Deciding which sites to make priorities can be very confusing. The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization has taken a lot of the guesswork out of this for you. They have designated certain places in the world as World Heritage Sites indicating some of the most prominent sites related to humanity, culture and/or nature. Most of these sites require a passport but it is very easy to get a USA passport expedited when your travel plans sneak up on you so there is no need to worry, even if you dont have your passport in hand right now.

Online passport sites offer all sorts of services, from getting American passport extra pages or simply renewing an old passport.

World Heritage Sites are broken up into two categories. One category is dedicated to those sites of cultural significance and another is related to natural significance. Africas rich with these sites boasting one hundred and nineteen. We will be pointing out some of these sites, but first we are going to direct your attention toEgypt.

The site of Ancient Thebes inEgyptis a living testimony to one of the oldest civilizations on earth. Full of ancient Egyptian monuments, temples, and relics, this site also features the Necropolis. Many influential leaders ofEgyptwere buried in this Necropolis, including the mortuarytempleofHatshepsut, a female Pharaoh that is regarded as one of the most successful pharaohs of all time. Also on this plot of land is located theValley of the Kingsand the Valley of theQueens, where pharaohs and their wives were buried, respectfully.

Moving on toAfrica,BwindiImpenetrableNational ParkinUgandais rich with biodiversity. A visitor can find over 120 species of mammals, 202 species of butterflies, 27 species of frogs and 346 species of birds at this location enjoying the beautiful terrain. Other sites that draw visitors include the mountain gorilla known as the Bwindi gorilla as well as numerous species of monkeys. The thick forest coupled with the altitude has encouraged a vast number of animal species to grow and thrive. Many other African forests and jungles have been labeled World Heritage Sites. It would not be difficult to enjoy an African safari in any one of these sites.

Moving to the area ofSouth Africa, the Fossil Hominid Sites of Sterkfontein, Swartkrans, Kromdraai and Environs are found here and have been named World Heritage Sites. At these locations, the adventure can see fossils that unlock the mysteries related to our ancient ancestors with many of the formations thought to be over 3.5 million years old. The historical value of these sites is certainly obvious.

Traveling toAfricacan be an amazing adventure. With a knowledgeable travel agent and careful planning, you can travel toAfricasafely and have tons of fun at the same time. Just remember your passport. Online sites can help you get your passport expedited or getUSpassport extra pages, all you have to do is click. These are just a few of the World Heritage Sites located inAfrica, and discovering them all for yourself definitely paves the way for adventure.

You can also find this article published on Connecting To The Ancient Earth - World Heritage Sites InAfrica , and on the tag pages adventure, Ancient, ancient egyptian monuments, interesting places in the world, Sites , united nations educational scientific and cultural organization.