

Published based on The Best Bond Gadgets

The Best Bond Gadgets

Over the years there have been a fair number of 007 gadgets. There have been great ones, terrible ones and ones that just do not make any sense at all. Here are some of the best ones as voted by the fans of course.

Aston Martin DB5

I think it is safe to say that this one actually set the tone for the rest of the Bond gadgets that we saw in every film from Goldfinger. Without this I am not sure we would have gone on to see some of the other gadgets which is why it simply has to be on the top of the list. This car came with bulletproof glass, bullet shield, revolving licence plates, smoke-screen, oil slick, machine guns and of course who could forget the tire shredders. Most of these you wouldn't be able to find in a spy shop store nowadays that's for sure!

The Omega Watch

For me this is one of my favourites, Brosnan was the Bond that I grew up watching. The watch (although slightly different in each movie) was actually worn three times by Brosnan and most famously allowed him to escape the train in GoldenEye thanks to the laser beam cutter it had attached to it. Before you ask, no it did not have hidden spy cameras in it.

Ericsson Phone From Tomorrow Never Dies

It would seem this movie was big for advertising when it comes to Sony but the phone itself allowed Bond to do a lot of things like getting into doors and to shock the assassin Dr. Kaufman. The most famous use for this gadget was when Bond is in the car park steering his car with the phone, a classic Bond moment.

So although there are no mobile phone tracking things or causal gadgets you can buy now, Bond has always been about the absurd gadgets, something the last two films have really been missing out on!

You can also find this article published on The Best Bond Gadgets, and on the tag pages bond gadgets, car, course, glass bullet, Phone, spy cameras.