

Published based on What To Do In Belgium

What To Do In Belgium

Today, the country of Belgium is slowly becoming one of the prime tourist destinations in Europe. Located in the western part of the continent, the country of Belgium had long been shadowed by its neighbor countries of France, Germany, Luxembourg and the Netherlands in terms of tourism. But that is all changing. In fact, more and more travelers are veering away from the typical tourist travel destinations in Europe and are now visiting some of its lesser known countries.

Like all travelers heading out to Belgium for the very first time, you would want to make the most out of your trip. Here are just some tips to help you do just that.

The best time to travel the country is during the months of July and August. During this time, the temperatures are just ideal for you to explore the outdoors which can be quite a problem before these months since the climate of the country is known for frequent rainfalls. On top of that, the months of July and August are when the rates in hotels and other accommodations are at its lowest, which is perfect especially if you are traveling on a budget.

For tourists traveling on a budget, the best time to visit the country of Belgium is during the months of July and August. During these months, travelers can experience a drop in most of the rates of hotel accommodations and airfares, especially within the capital city of Belgium.

From here, head out to the famous town of Waterloo which is situated just 10 miles from the capital city of Belgium. Known in his history as the place where Napoleon fell in battle, the town has become one of the most visited tourist destinations in the country.

For a dose of history, head ten miles out of the capital city to Waterloo. This region is characterized as a quiet escape from the hustle and bustle of the city life. The lush landscapes found in this region are not the only reason for this being one of the top tourist destinations in the country. Many tourists flock to Waterloo in order to visit the historic land where the great Napoleon Bonaparte was defeated in battle.

You can also find this article published on What To Do In Belgium, and on the tag pages budget, capital city of belgium, time, top tourist destinations, tourist, town of waterloo.